Introduction

Hate crimes / hate incidents can take place anywhere – at home, in the streets, at work, online or at school.

No-one should have to live with the fear, anxiety and consequences of hate.

Reporting it when it happens means we can investigate it, and it may prevent similar incidents happening to someone else. It will also help us understand the extent of hate crime across local communities, so we can respond better at a local level.

What is a hate crime?

A hate crime is any criminal offence which is perceived by the victim or any other person to be motivated by a hostility or prejudice.

What is a hate incident?

A hate incident is any non-crime incident which is perceived by the victim or any other person to be motivated by hostility or prejudice.

What is third party reporting?

We recognise that victims of hate crime and hate incidents may find it difficult to report the matter directly to us. We work with several organisations who you may feel more comfortable talking to, these are called Third-Party Reporting Centres. Staff at the Third-Party Reporting Centres have been trained to help victims and witnesses to submit a report to the police.

Alternatively, they can make a report on your behalf. To find your nearest Third-Party Reporting Centre go to <https://www.humberside.police.uk/hate-crime>

Alternative ways to report hate crime

True Vision: True Vision has been developed so that you can report hate crimes online - you do not have to visit a police station to report.
